

MAKING MONEY WHEN NOBODY HIRES YOU

A practical field guide to creating income without waiting for an employer to choose you

Traditional employment is only one way of selling labor.

A job bundles hundreds of transactions together: an employer needs something done repeatedly, and you agree to do it in exchange for wages. When conventional employment is unavailable, inaccessible, too slow, or simply not working, the objective becomes different:

Find people who need something done and create smaller transactions yourself.

You may have more to sell than you realize:

Labor. Time. Strength. Organization. Attention. Knowledge. Creativity. Personality. Equipment. Access. Digital skills. Things you own. Things other people need sold. Problems you're willing to deal with that somebody else doesn't want to deal with.

You do not necessarily need one $2,000/month job.

You can build $2,000 from a collection of smaller income streams.

1. START WITH WHAT YOU HAVE

Before asking, “What job can I get?”, inventory what you can currently exchange.

PHYSICAL ABILITY

Can you:

Clean?

Lift?

Pack?

Carry?

Walk dogs?

Paint?

Organize?

Wash things?

Pull weeds?

Assemble furniture?

Cook?

Sew?

Decorate?

Sort things?

Take photographs?

Help someone move?

Physical labor is one of the easiest things to turn into money because the customer often already owns everything required to perform the work.

You don't need a lawnmower to say:

“I'll clean up your yard using your tools.”

You don't need cleaning supplies to say:

“I'll clean your kitchen using the products you already have.”

THINGS YOU KNOW

Can you:

Write?

Research?

Teach?

Tutor?

Edit?

Proofread?

Organize information?

Use social media?

Build websites?

Make spreadsheets?

Use Canva?

Use WordPress?

Use Shopify?

Set up Discord?

Write resumes?

Make PDFs?

Use AI tools effectively?

Teach software?

Understand a particular hobby or industry?

Knowledge is inventory that doesn't have to be purchased.

CREATIVE ABILITY

Can you:

Draw?

Design?

Write poetry?

Perform?

Make videos?

Make shirts?

Make jewelry?

Paint?

Write stories?
Make music?
Take photographs?
Create memes?
Create characters?
Make digital art?
Make invitations?
Create personalized gifts?

Creativity can become a service, product, performance or audience.

PERSONALITY

Can you:

Make people laugh?
Tell stories?
Explain complicated things?
Listen?
Interview people?
Entertain?
Host conversations?
Perform?
Debate?
Analyze movies/books/music?
Talk about a niche subject for hours?

The internet created an economy around attention and interaction.

STUFF

Do you own:

Clothing?
Electronics?
Tools?
Craft supplies?
Furniture?
Collectibles?
Books?
Camping gear?
Baby gear?
Sports equipment?
Musical equipment?

Some possessions can be sold.

Others may be rentable where lawful and insured appropriately.

2. I HAVE $0 AND NEED TO START

Start with labor, because the customer can provide the property and equipment.

CLEANING

Offer one specific service instead of:

“House cleaner available.”

Try:

Kitchen reset — $40

Dishes. Counters. Stove. Sink. Sweep/mop.

Or:

Bathroom deep clean — $30

Or:

Move-out cleaning — quote by size

Potential work:

- House cleaning
- Apartment cleaning
- Move-out cleaning
- Rental turnover cleaning
- Office cleaning
- Garage cleaning
- Porch/patio cleaning
- Refrigerator cleaning
- Cabinet cleaning
- Laundry
- Dishes
- Post-party cleanup

Recurring cleaning is especially valuable because one customer can become weekly or biweekly income.

3. PACKING AND UNPACKING

This is a fantastic low-startup service.

People absolutely hate moving.

Offer:

PACKING HELP

They provide boxes/tape.

You:

Wrap items

Pack boxes

Label boxes

Sort possessions

Prepare donations

Prepare trash

Photograph valuable items

Create inventory lists

After the move:

UNPACKING HELP

Open boxes

Put kitchen away

Organize closets

Flatten boxes

Set up rooms

You aren't necessarily a moving company. You're selling labor and organization.

4. MOVING LABOR WITHOUT OWNING A TRUCK

Someone else has:

Truck.

U-Haul.

Trailer.

Storage unit.

You provide:

arms.

Potential offers:

Loading help

Unloading help

Carrying boxes

Furniture repositioning
Storage-unit organization
Garage cleanout
Moving items downstairs
Donation preparation

Be explicit that you're providing labor only, not transportation.

5. ORGANIZING

People pay to make chaos disappear.

Closets
Panties
Kitchens
Garages
Storage units
Bedrooms
Home offices
Craft rooms
Kids' rooms
Paperwork
Digital files

A good offer isn't:

“Professional organization consultant.”

It's:

“Give me your nightmare closet for two hours.”

Specific sells.

6. ESTATE / DOWNSIZING HELP

This is much bigger than ordinary cleaning.

Someone has:

A deceased relative's house.

An elderly parent's home.

A divorce move.

A storage unit.

A house they're downsizing.

And they're staring at 1,000 objects.

You can help:

Sort KEEP / SELL / DONATE / TRASH.

Photograph items.

Research basic resale prices.

Create listings.

Pack donations.

Organize pickups.

Prepare garage-sale tables.

Clean afterward.

This can combine labor + organization + consignment selling.

7. SELL OTHER PEOPLE'S STUFF

One of the strongest zero-inventory businesses.

People own thousands of dollars worth of things they cannot be bothered to sell.

You offer to handle:

Research

Cleaning

Photography

Descriptions

Listings

Messages

Negotiation

Pickup coordination

Shipping

Payment could be:

Flat listing fee

Example:

$25 for 10 listings.

Or:

Commission

Example:

You receive an agreed percentage of completed sales.

Or:

Hybrid

Small listing fee + smaller commission.

Get the arrangement in writing, especially who owns the property, minimum acceptable prices, platform fees, returns and when proceeds are paid.

8. GARAGE SALE OPERATOR

Take the previous concept offline.

Someone says:

“I need this garage emptied.”

You organize:

Sorting

Pricing

Signs

Tables

Advertising

Sale day

Payment collection

Cleanup

Donation pickup afterward

Charge a flat amount, percentage, or combination agreed beforehand.

You're selling:

“I will turn this pile into money and make it disappear.”

That's valuable.

9. YARD LABOR WITHOUT A LANDSCAPING COMPANY

Using the homeowner's equipment:

Weeding

Raking

Leaf cleanup
Branch collection
Garden cleanup
Patio cleanup
Plant watering
Mulch spreading
Sweeping
Outdoor organization
Storm cleanup that doesn't involve hazardous work

Avoid representing yourself as qualified for tree removal, electrical work, pesticide application or other regulated/hazardous work unless you actually are.

10. PET SERVICES

Dog walking.

Pet sitting.

House + pet sitting.

Feeding visits.

Litter-box cleaning.

Pet transportation if you have appropriate transportation.

Overnight sitting.

Vacation check-ins.

Aquarium feeding.

Bird care.

Small-animal care.

Pet sitting can turn into recurring customers quickly because trust is valuable.

11. THE “I DON'T WANT TO DO THIS” ECONOMY

This is one of the most important categories.

Don't ask:

What difficult thing can I do?

Ask:

What annoying thing do people avoid doing?

People hate:

Returning packages.

Waiting for repair technicians.

Cleaning refrigerators.

Packing.

Unpacking.

Organizing closets.

Taking donation loads.

Photographing things for sale.

Listing things.

Assembling furniture.

Sorting paperwork.

Scanning documents.

Setting up printers.

Cleaning garages.

Waiting in lines.

Making phone calls.

Researching purchases.

Setting up new phones.

Learning software.

Writing listings.

That's an economy.

12. BASIC TECH HELP

There are people who will happily pay someone $30 rather than spend three hours fighting a printer.

Offer:

Phone setup

- Printer setup
- Smart-TV setup
- Streaming-service setup
- Email organization
- Photo backup
- Cloud-storage organization
- Basic computer cleanup
- Password-manager setup
- App installation
- Video-call setup
- File organization
- Scanning documents
- PDF creation

Stay within your actual competence and never ask customers for passwords you don't need.

13. DIGITAL ORGANIZATION

People's computers are disasters too.

Offer:

2-HOUR DIGITAL CLEANUP

Organize:

- Downloads
- Desktop
- Photos
- Documents
- Google Drive
- Dropbox
- Email folders
- Business files

Create:

- Folder structures
- Naming systems
- Backups
- Archives

Small businesses can need this badly.

14. MARKETPLACE LISTING SERVICE

A surprisingly simple remote-ish service.

Customer sends:

Photos

Item information

Condition

You provide:

Suggested price

Title

Description

Category

Keywords

Pickup language

You can charge per listing or bundle.

For example:

10 listings — $25

25 listings — $50

They can post the finished listings themselves if platform rules/account access make direct management impractical.

15. RESELLING FREE ITEMS

Startup inventory can sometimes cost $0.

Potential sources:

Buy Nothing groups

Freecycle

Craigslist Free

Marketplace free listings

Moving giveaways

Curb alerts where taking the items is lawful

Items given directly to you

Then:

CLEAN → TEST → PHOTOGRAPH → BUNDLE → SELL

But use judgment.

DON'T COLLECT GARBAGE

A free item isn't valuable because it was free.

Think:

How much could this sell for?

How quickly?

How much space does it consume?

Can I transport it?

Does it need repairs?

Can I verify it works?

A small $40 item you can carry is often better than a gigantic $75 piece of furniture.

16. FLIPPING THROUGH IMPROVEMENT

Value can come from changing presentation rather than manufacturing something.

Examples:

Dirty furniture → cleaned.

Mixed craft supplies → organized bundles.

Pile of children's clothes → size-based lots.

Old hardware → sorted sets.

Unorganized books → themed lots.

Furniture → refinished, if you have the skills/materials.

The economic action is:

Take something inconvenient and make it convenient.

17. TEMPORARY PHYSICAL LABOR

Search for:

Event setup.

Event teardown.

Convention labor.

Festival staff.

Banquet setup.

Catering support.

Warehouse shifts.

Inventory counting.

Moving labor.

Election/event staffing where available.

Merchandise setup.

Seasonal retail resets.

Hospitality shifts.

Dishwashing.

Kitchen prep.

Housekeeping.

Grounds work.

These aren't necessarily careers. They're cash bridges.

18. FOOD / HOSPITALITY WORK

Beyond traditional applications, smaller businesses sometimes need:

Dishwashers.

Prep help.

Banquet staff.

Event servers.

Catering setup.

Cleanup.

Food-truck help.

Bakery packaging.

Market setup.

Farmers-market staff.

Temporary festival workers.

Where food handling permits or other credentials are required, get the appropriate credentials first.

19. FARM / HOMESTEAD LABOR

Farm work can potentially solve income + housing + sometimes food.

Potential work:

Harvesting

Planting

Weeding

Greenhouse work

Packing produce

Animal care

Stall cleaning

Fence maintenance

Farmstand work

CSA packing

Property maintenance

Some are regular jobs.

Others are apprenticeships.

Others are room-and-board exchanges.

Do not confuse the three.

20. CAMPGROUND / PROPERTY LABOR

Potential roles:

Campground cleaning.

Bathrooms.

Cabin turnover.

Grounds.

Front desk.

Reservations.

Camp store.

Night host.

Maintenance assistance.

Campground host.

Resident manager.

Property caretaker.

Some provide:

pay + campsite

or

pay + housing

or

site in exchange for hours.

21. HOUSE SITTING / PROPERTY SITTING

Someone's property needs to remain occupied.

Tasks may include:

Mail.

Plants.

Pets.

Deliveries.

Basic property checks.

Contractor access.

Pool checks.

Garden.

Security presence.

Most mainstream house-sitting arrangements are accommodation exchanges rather than paid jobs, while true caretaker positions can include wages.

This can still eliminate the housing expense even when it doesn't create cash.

22. LIVE-IN COMPANION WORK

Not every caregiving role is medical.

Some people need:

Company.

Meal preparation.

Light housekeeping.

Errands.

Laundry.

Pet care.

Transportation.

Someone present overnight.

Conversation.

Walking/activity assistance.

Do not perform medical services requiring credentials you don't possess.

But legitimate companion positions can provide:

pay + room

and occasionally a separate living space.

23. CREATIVE SERVICES

Now keep all the creative possibilities too.

Custom art.

Logos.

Flyers.

Posters.

Invitations.

T-shirt graphics.

Tattoo concepts.

Album art.

Book covers.

Social graphics.

Memes.

YouTube thumbnails.

Digital portraits.

Printable art.

Custom cards.

Event graphics.

Menus.

Business cards.

Brand packages.

Custom merch.

24. WRITING FOR MONEY

Resume writing.

Cover letters.

Bios.

Product descriptions.

Website copy.

Blog posts.

Newsletters.

Proofreading.

Editing.

Formatting.

Ghostwriting where ethically appropriate.

Custom poems.

Wedding vows.

Speeches.

Obituaries/memorial writing.

Dating-profile rewrites.

Marketplace listings.

Business FAQs.

Instruction manuals.

Research summaries.

25. TURN INFORMATION INTO PRODUCTS

If you've spent hours solving a problem, organize what you learned.

Potential products:

Field guides.

Checklists.

Directories.

Templates.

Worksheets.

Resource packets.

Mini-books.

Zines.

Printable planners.

Tutorials.

Classes.

Workshops.

Digital bundles.

You're selling the organization and usefulness, not pretending publicly available facts belong to you.

26. PRINT-ON-DEMAND

You design.

A third-party company manufactures after purchase.

Potential products:

Shirts.

Hoodies.

Posters.

Mugs.

Stickers.

Bags.

Phone cases.

Customer purchases → manufacturer produces → manufacturer ships → seller keeps the remaining margin after costs/fees.

This avoids buying large quantities of inventory.

27. CUSTOM PHYSICAL PRODUCTS

If equipment/materials are available:

Custom shirts.

Cards.

Stickers.

Prints.

Buttons.

Jewelry.

Decorations.

Signs.

Upcycled clothing.

Painted objects.

Alterations.

Craft items.

Personalized gifts.

But calculate materials + platform fees + labor + shipping before deciding the selling price.

28. PERFORMANCE IS A PRODUCT

People pay for experiences too.

Poetry performances.

Storytelling.

Custom roasts.

Comedy.

Music.

Live art.

Tarot/entertainment readings where lawful and appropriately represented.

Personalized videos.

Birthday messages.

Character performances.

Gaming.

Livestream discussions.

Workshops.

Virtual events.

You don't necessarily need to sell an object.

29. LIVESTREAMING

A live itself can become the top of a larger income system.

Potential paths:

Viewer gifts/tips where the platform allows.

Subscriptions.

Merchandise.

Digital products.

Custom commissions.

Paid consultations/services.

Affiliate products.

Membership/community.

Events.

A particularly strong live format has a repeatable premise:

Perform → explain → interact.

Create → show process → sell finished work.

Teach → answer questions → offer deeper resource.

The live generates attention. The other pieces give that attention somewhere to go.

30. SHORT-FORM CONTENT FOR BUSINESSES

Small businesses constantly need:

TikToks.

Reels.

Shorts.

Product clips.

Voiceovers.

Simple editing.

Captions.

Before/after videos.

They may not need a giant marketing agency.

They might need:

“I’ll make you five usable vertical videos for $75.”

31. USER-GENERATED CONTENT

UGC is content created for brands to use.

You don’t necessarily need a huge following because the company may want the content itself, not your audience.

Examples:

Product demonstrations.

Unboxings.

Testimonials based on genuine experience.

Lifestyle clips.

Voiceover demonstrations.

Tutorials.

Never make false testimonials for products you haven't actually used.

32. VIDEO EDITING

People have footage.

They don't want to edit it.

Offer:

5 shorts.

10 clips.

Podcast clips.

Captions.

Basic transitions.

TikTok formatting.

YouTube Shorts.

Reels.

Before/after clips.

This can become recurring work.

33. DIGITAL FREELANCE SERVICES

Laptop + internet creates another enormous category:

Virtual assistance.

Research.

Data entry.

Spreadsheet cleanup.

Document formatting.

Presentation design.

PDF creation.

Transcription.

Proofreading.

Email organization.

Calendar organization.

Website updates.

WordPress.

Shopify.

Product uploading.

Community moderation.

Discord setup.

Newsletter formatting.

Lead research.

Customer-support assistance.

34. MICRO-WEBSITE CREATION

Many people don't need a $5,000 website.

They need:

Name.

Description.

Services.

Contact information.

Links.

Maybe a booking button.

Offer:

ONE-PAGE WEBSITE SETUP

Using a platform you actually know.

A very simple product is easier to buy than:

“comprehensive digital transformation consulting.”

35. TEACH SOMETHING

You don't have to be the world's foremost expert.

You need to know something sufficiently well to teach it accurately.

Tutoring.

Software help.

Craft classes.

Writing.

Art.

Cooking.

Music.

Language conversation.

Social-media basics.

Computer basics.

Homeschool subject support.

Workshops.

One-on-one instruction.

36. RESEARCH FOR OTHER PEOPLE

People pay to avoid research.

Examples:

Travel research.

Product comparison.

Vendor research.

Apartment leads.

Job lead compilation.

Grant opportunity research.

Public-record research where lawful.

Competitor research.

Resource directories.

Citation/source collection.

You aren't necessarily selling the information.

You're selling:

“I spent three hours finding, checking and organizing it so you didn't have to.”

37. THE MIDDLEMAN ECONOMY

Sometimes your value is simply:

I can make this happen.

Potential services:

Appointment setting.

Vendor coordination.

Contractor scheduling.

Marketplace sales management.

Event organization.

Research sourcing.

Lead generation.

Property coordination.

Turnover coordination.

Community management.

Referral arrangements where lawful and transparently agreed.

You sell organization and friction removal.

38. RENTING THINGS YOU ALREADY OWN

Where lawful and adequately insured, certain possessions may produce income rather than being sold.

Examples can include:

Tools.

Camping equipment.

Party equipment.

Camera equipment.

Musical equipment.

Craft machines.

Storage space.

Parking space.

Different platforms, leases, HOAs and insurance policies impose different restrictions, so check before doing it.

39. BARTER: SOMETIMES YOU DON'T ACTUALLY NEED MONEY

Suppose somebody says:

“I need $700.”

Ask:

Why?

If the answer is:

“Somewhere to stay.”

Then the actual requirement isn't necessarily $700.

It's shelter.

Maybe:

Property caretaking → cottage.

Campground work → campsite.

Farm work → cabin.

House sitting → accommodation.

Live-in companion → room.

Motel management → room/apartment.

Website work → negotiated lodging.

That doesn't eliminate the need for cash entirely.

It reduces how much cash must be produced.

40. BUILD A HAVE / NEED SHEET

Write:

I HAVE

Labor

Time

Skills

Knowledge

Equipment

Creativity

Internet

Transportation

Space

Connections

Things

Experience

I NEED

Housing

Food

Cash

Transportation

Childcare

Equipment

Internet

Repairs

Clothing

Then ask:

Which thing in HAVE could obtain something in NEED directly?

41. HOW TO ACTUALLY GET CUSTOMERS

This is where most hustle guides fail.

Don't sell:

“general services.”

Sell a defined outcome.

BAD:

Virtual assistant available.

BETTER:

I'll organize your inbox and create folders — $30.

BAD:

Freelance designer.

BETTER:

I'll make your event flyer — $25.

BAD:

Moving assistance.

BETTER:

Two hours of packing help — you provide boxes/tape — $40.

BAD:

Resale consultant.

BETTER:

I'll photograph, price and list 15 things you want gone — $40.

The formula is:

I WILL DO [SPECIFIC THING] FOR [SPECIFIC PRICE].

42. WHERE TO FIND CUSTOMERS

Depending on the service and local/platform rules:

Facebook community groups.

Neighborhood groups.

Nextdoor.

Craigslist.

Local Reddit communities.

Community Discords.

Library bulletin boards.

College/community boards.

Community centers.

Local business groups.

Your social accounts.

Freelance platforms.

Gig platforms.

Service marketplaces.

Direct email.

Direct messages.

Friends-of-friends.

Local organizations.

Small businesses.

Apartment/community bulletin boards where posting is allowed.

43. SEARCH FOR PEOPLE ALREADY ASKING FOR HELP

Don't only post advertisements.

Search:

“need help moving”

“looking for cleaner”

“need someone to”

“anyone know somebody who”

“need help packing”

“need dog sitter”

“need website”

“looking for handyman” — only respond for work you're qualified to perform.

“moving sale”

“need this gone”

“help organizing”

Demand has already announced itself.

44. CONTACT SMALL BUSINESSES DIRECTLY

Look for an obvious problem you can solve.

Restaurant has terrible menu photos?

Offer photography.

Business hasn't posted in two months?

Offer short videos.

Website looks abandoned?

Offer a simple update.

Store has 200 products but poor descriptions?

Offer listing cleanup.

Don't send:

Hello, I am an innovative digital solutions provider...

Send:

Hey — I noticed your Instagram hasn't had many new product videos lately. I make simple vertical product clips. I could make five for $75 if that's useful.

Problem → solution → price.

45. MAKE THE FIRST SALE EASY

When nobody knows you, reduce their risk.

Don't begin with:

$900 comprehensive service package.

Get:

$20.

$30.

$50.

Then:

Do excellent work.

Get testimonial.

Get referral.

Offer recurring service.

A $30 customer can become:

$120/month recurring customer.

That's where things change.

46. TURN ONE-OFF WORK INTO RECURRING MONEY

After cleaning:

Want me to come every other Thursday?

After dog sitting:

I can do your weekday walks too.

After social media:

I can make five clips every month.

After listing items:

Send me another batch next week.

After yard cleanup:

I can maintain it twice monthly.

After admin work:

I can handle this weekly.

You don't need 100 customers.

You might need 10 recurring ones.

47. STACK INCOME

Stop imagining that salvation has to arrive as one paycheck.

Suppose this week:

Cleaning: $80

Packing: $60

Sold old electronics: $90

Consignment commission: $45

Digital design: $50

Pet sitting: $75

One marketplace flip: $40

That's $440 produced through seven transactions.

None needed to be a job.

48. MONEY TODAY / MONEY THIS WEEK / MONEY LATER

MONEY TODAY

Sell possessions.

Cleaning.

Moving labor.

Packing.

Yard cleanup.

Garage cleanup.

Marketplace flipping.

Consignment.

One-off local services.

MONEY THIS WEEK

Pet sitting.

House sitting.

Recurring cleaning.

Freelance microservices.

Video editing.

Tutoring.

Temporary labor.

Marketplace listing.

Custom art.

User research/testing through legitimate platforms.

MONEY THIS MONTH

Regular clients.

Digital products.

Print-on-demand.

Content monetization.

Recurring social-media work.

Tutoring clients.

Resale operation.

Caretaker work.

Work-with-housing arrangement.

BUILD OVER TIME

Audience.

Brand.

Newsletter.

Paid community.

Course.

Product library.

Service agency.

Consignment operation.

Recurring client roster.

49. BUILD THREE TYPES OF INCOME

The strongest setup may contain all three.

IMMEDIATE

Labor.

Selling.

One-off gigs.

RECURRING

Cleaning clients.

Pet clients.

Social-media clients.

Tutoring.

VA work.

SCALABLE

Digital products.

Content.

POD.

Courses.

Guides.

Affiliate publishing.

You use immediate money to survive while recurring and scalable income have time to grow.

50. SAFETY MATTERS

Unconventional income doesn't mean abandoning basic precautions.

For local jobs:

Tell someone where you're going when appropriate.

Meet marketplace buyers safely.

Don't enter obviously unsafe situations.

Clarify the work and price before starting.

Don't accept jobs requiring credentials you don't possess.

Don't perform dangerous electrical, structural, medical, tree-removal, hazardous-material or similar work without proper qualifications.

For online work:

Beware fake checks.

Don't pay someone to “unlock” wages.

Don't accept reshipping jobs involving mystery packages.

Don't buy gift cards for employers.

Don't send money back from an employer's check.

Don't give strangers remote access to your bank account.

Keep records of agreements and payments.

51. CREATE A SIMPLE SERVICE MENU

Pick five things you could realistically do tomorrow.

For example:

PACKING HELP

2 hours — $40

KITCHEN RESET

$40

MARKETPLACE LISTINGS

10 listings — $25

CLOSET ORGANIZATION

2 hours — $40

CUSTOM FLYER

$25

Now you're no longer saying:

"I need money."

You're saying:

"I currently have five things for sale."

That psychological shift matters.

52. THE FINAL RULE

When conventional employment isn't working, stop thinking exclusively in terms of occupations.

Think in terms of problems.

Someone has a dirty apartment.

Someone needs 30 boxes packed.

Someone has a garage full of possessions.

Someone needs their dog watched.

Someone has 40 products that need listing.

Someone needs a flyer.

Someone has six hours of footage.

Someone needs a website.

Someone needs weeds pulled.

Someone needs their mother's house sorted.

Someone needs a PDF made.

Someone needs their campground staffed.

Someone needs someone living on their property.

Someone needs an annoying thing handled.

Every one of those is a transaction waiting to exist.

The objective isn't necessarily:

Find somebody willing to employ me.

It can become:

Find something somebody needs done. Define exactly what I'm willing to do. Put a price on it.
Complete the transaction. Repeat.

And don't require one opportunity to rescue you.

$25 + $40 + $75 + $30 + $100 + $50 is income too.

Build the pile.
